

California State University,
FULLERTON

Looking Back . . .

The 2,000-pound tortoise racing 14 elephants down a dirt road near what now is Cal State Fullerton was Ernest Becker's favorite memory.

For Justin Gray, it was working with the rest of the faculty on the second floor of a condemned building at Sunny Hills High School, which is now Fullerton High School. That, Gray said, was the college's entire campus during its early years.

"We became like a family there," Gray said with a chuckle. "Because we all had to work out of the same damn room in the same damn building."

These were just some of the memories rekindled last week when a sundial and plaque were dedicated at Cal State Fullerton's main quad in honor of the 25 full-time faculty and staff members who opened the university 29 years ago. More than 70 former and current professors joined alumni and students for the dedication Wednesday.

University President Jewel Plummer Cobb said the sundial is "an expression of how the university is now a permanent part of this land."

When the university opened in 1959, it was called Orange County

State College and had an enrollment of 452, university officials said. Today, with more than 24,500 students, Cal State Fullerton is the largest four-year university in Orange County.

"I remember back when it was just 260 acres of orange groves," said Becker, the first dean of students.

When the administration office opened at a nearby high school, he said, "The Fire Department told us we needed a fire escape from the second floor. So, we tied a coil of rope from the president's desk and hung it out the window — and that was our fire escape."

The university first received national acclaim when faculty and staff sponsored the first-ever collegiate elephant races, Becker said.

"It was all just a joke," he recalled, one that began when administrators, demonstrating how campus clubs should fill out forms to register with the university, entered the title, "Elephant Racing Club."

Soon people began to say, "Hey, why not?" Becker said. "We didn't think anyone was going to show up."

More than 10,000 spectators and 83 reporters and photographers did show up, however, to watch professors and students from universities including Oxford, Cambridge and Harvard race elephants.

"The outcome was that it raised a lot of dust and a lot of fun," he said. Harvard went home with the trophy.

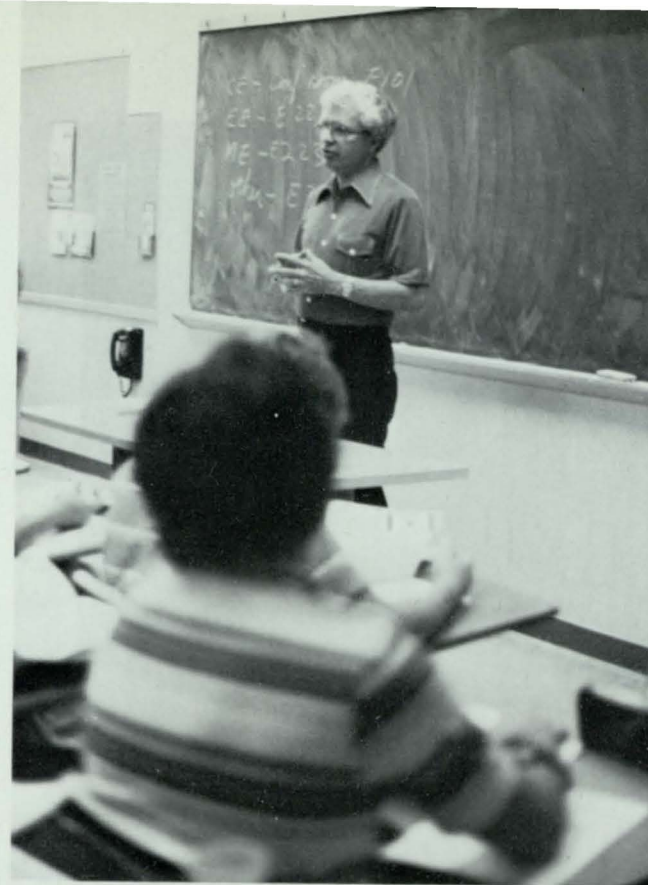

Many of the former deans and professors attending the dedication said they were pleased with university's success, but feared the campus had become too impersonal.

"Students used to meet at my house for friendly little gatherings," said William Maxwell, a professor of communications from 1960-1982. "We would chat and have a lot of fun."

There was a "feeling of closeness between the professors and the students" that is difficult to re-create now in classes with 200 students, he said.

Yet some things never change, said Gray, who was the first dean of the School of Arts at the university and taught music from 1961-1982.

"In class, I could always spot that one bored kid sitting in the back of the room thinking about his date that night," Gray remembered with a smile. "I'd always pick him and ask him the hardest question." - Copyright, 1988, Los Angeles Times. - Hugo Martin, Times Staff Writer.

New Beginning...

On January 25, 1988, California State University, Fullerton officially opened its campus housing. While Dr. Cobb held a ribbon cutting ceremony in the outdoor recreation area of the new resident halls, eager students and a few parents lugged clothing, stereos, lamps, posters and televisions into their new homes for the semester.

The housing complex consists of three four-story buildings and a community center. The community center offers typing rooms, computer rooms, a large recreation room, a lounge and a laundry facility. The entire complex is surrounded by a park like area which includes: barbecue pits, picnic tables and a full size basketball court. There is also a parking structure which can accommodate 200 automobiles. The lucky residents who win the right to park there are chosen by way of a lottery. Within the three four-story builds, there are 66 three bedroom suites designed to house six students (of the same sex, of course). Five of the suites offer special facilities for disabled students.

The 1,100 square foot suites have three bedrooms, two baths, and are air conditioned. They are fully furnished and come equipped with a 20 cubic foot refrigerator, a stove, an oven and a microwave oven. The suites also have cable television capability and each room is wired for computer hook-up.

For most of the new tenants who moved in that sunny January day, it would be the first time away from home, the first time they would have to cook for themselves, the first time they would have to do their own laundry and the first time they would have to learn how to use a budget. However, just knowing that they would be independent and free from parental authority was incentive enough to keep the fears of being on their own from frightening them too much.

One new dorm resident describes his first few days there:

I moved to the dorms so that I would have more independence and to get away from home. Before seeing my new home, I had worried that the dorms would be similar to the small, cramped ones I had seen at other universities. I was pleasantly surprised to find our dorms to be spacious and spread out.

After meeting my five roommates, I felt more comfortable. Except for a few minor problems in the beginning, things worked out with them. You never know what's going to happen when six strangers are put together for a semester.

Things were pretty quiet the first few days. However, on the first weekend after school started, things went a little crazy. There were several BIG parties that Friday night. People were everywhere; the place looked like an ant hill. But things suddenly came to a stand still when fire alarms started going off. Some people had gotten out of hand and had begun pulling the alarms. Needless to say, the resident Advisors were not to happy about it. From that night on, there were new rules: no kegs of beer allowed in the suites and no more than five guests in each suite at a time without permission from the proper authorities.

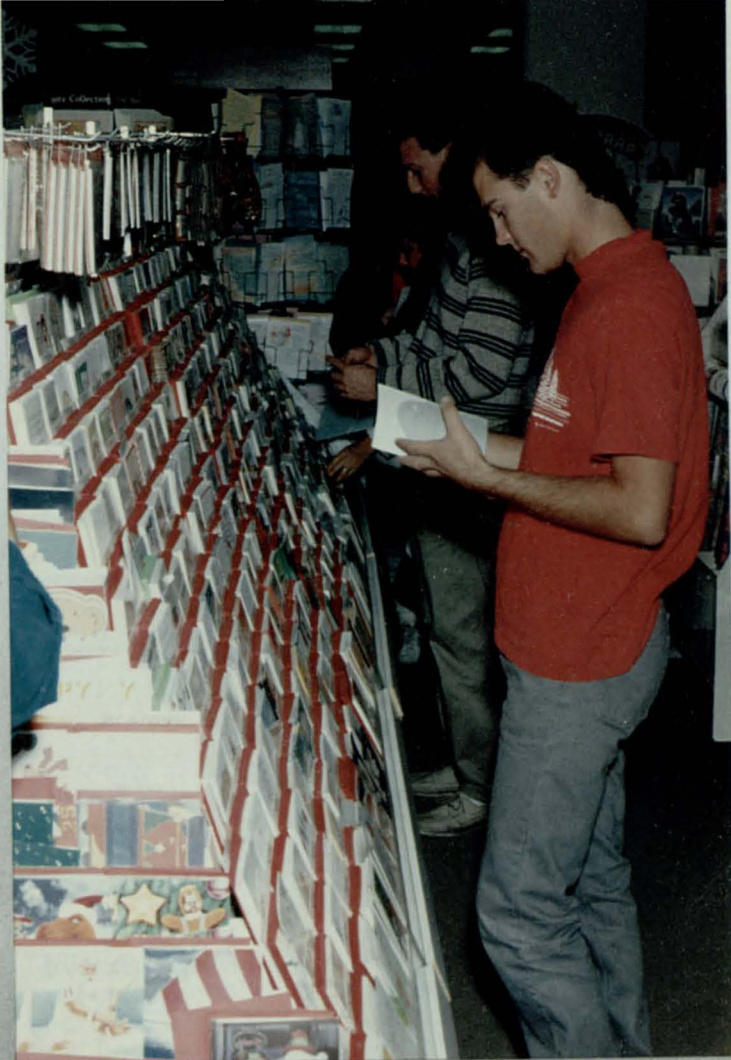

Now, things have settled and everyone is getting back to their normal routine. It's so nice here because everybody knows each other and is friendly. You would think that we wouldn't be able to get any studying done, but usually we can. There aren't anymore wild parties and most of our neighbors don't play loud music, most of the time.

I'm really glad I moved in. It's more like a condominium than a dorm. Plus, it's close to school and now I don't have to fight for a parking space.

On campus housing was the one of the major facilities that CSUF was missing. Now, there is a community of students on campus 24 hours a day. They are able to use University facilities more than other students and thus, can become more involved in extra-curricular activities. Before, most of the students who were involved in many of the school's activities were in the sororities and fraternities. The dorms residents are now also given the opportunity to use the convenience of living close to campus to enhance their academic careers. - by Bridget Baldwin.

Looking Ahead...

A new school that unites the nationally recognized Communications and Speech Communication departments will open July 1, 1988 on campus as the School of Communications.

The new school, the university's seventh, will be the largest of its kind in California. A nationwide search for a permanent dean began in November.

The two departments, currently serving more than 2,300 majors as part of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, will retain their departmental status.

"Creation of the School of Communications will play an important role in a world that has become increasingly complex and diverse, as evidenced by Orange County, our service area," said President Jewel Plummer Cobb.

"The new school will bring further stature to two already distinguished departments and, in turn, put them in a better position to recruit top students and faculty and to expand extramural funding," she continued. "No other university in California will have such a large, comprehensive school devoted to the study and applications of communications to organizational communication to speech therapy."

"With Southern California second only to New York as a world communication center, it is fitting that we transform this carefully planned initiative into a reality."

Communications chaired by Dr. Edgar P. Trotter, is the nation's third largest program in terms of majors with more than 2,000 enrolled in the fall. It offers both graduate and undergraduate degrees and sequences in advertising, news-editorial, public relations, photo-communications and radio-television-film. It is recognized by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications.

Speech Communication, chaired by Dr. Joyce M. Flocken, currently serves more than 275 majors and offers graduate and undergraduate degrees as well as a variety of credential and licensure programs. Its two areas of emphasis are communication theory and process and communicative disorders. The department is accredited by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

Together, the departments have awarded 6,412 degrees with 543 at the graduate level. Their full-time faculties total more than 50. - Titan News.

I extend my warmest congratulations to all who have successfully completed degree objectives this year at Cal State Fullerton.

In your studies and discussions, you have explored and assimilated hundreds of new concepts, theories and facts. In your classes, you have adapted to a wide variety of teaching styles. In your examinations, you have demonstrated your ability not only to recall information but to understand what you have learned.

Even more importantly, you have developed your curiosity, your sense of values and your foundations for the future. In doing so, you have contributed to the vitality of the campus.

As you pursue new experiences, I hope that the knowledge and the skills you have gained here will enrich your life and bring further rewards to you and to society. I hope, too, that the energy and self-discipline that contributed to your success here will remain with you for the rest of your life.

I encourage you to keep in close contact with us so that you can continue to play an important role in enhancing Cal State Fullerton's stature. As an alumnus, you are very special to us, and we are anxious to hear about your future successes and to enjoy your further involvement in the life of the campus.

Accounting Society

The Accounting Society is one of the most important organizations on CSUF for accounting majors. The Accounting Society is made up of very dedicated accounting majors who have chosen the field of accounting as their future. The Accounting Society serves as a "middleman," in order to bring together this dedicated group of accounting majors with business and accounting firms. By sponsoring speakers from Big Eight, Middle Eight, and government accountants, students are introduced and informed about their future and the accounting world that lies ahead of them.

K 1987-88 TITANS L CAL STATE FULLERTON

Basketball

Coming off of a season where they made their second appearance in post-season competition and earned a Top 20 National Ranking, the hopes were high for George McQuarns mens Basketball Team. But, Derek Jones was wounded in the back and left arm in a random drive by shooting near his home in Long Beach, and was out for the season. Fullerton was picked to finish third in the PCAA, but the team got hit with most of their starting line up on the injured list or riding the sick bed for the better part of the season. But the Titans received great efforts from Henry Turner, Richard Morton, and Eugene Jackson. The Titans won five of their last six regular season games, and defeated Fresno State in the PCAA Tournament opener. Despite all the efforts the season came to an end when they lost 61-56 to the University of Nevada at Las Vegas in a quarter final game. The Titans finished the year at 12-17 with a 7-11 PCAA mark.

Football

This year the Titan Football Team ran into the most challenging season in the University's history. The team was headed by seven year Coach Gene Murphy. The team came out with a 6-6 overall record and a 4-3 Pacific Coast Athletic Association mark. Although, the team faced a few outstanding road opponents which included Louisiana State, Hawaii, and Florida. Despite these few minor set backs the Cal State team came one game away from a winning season.

Along the way the team was pushed forward by many individual efforts. Such as, Senior Todd White, wide receiver, who captured three career records which included: 98 pass receptions, 1504 pass receiving yards, and 420 punt return yards. Along with these records he also acquired three single season marks, these being: 54 pass receptions, 832 pass receiving yards and 374 punt return yards. He also received Most Valuable Player Offensive back, Special Teams Player of the Year and was also PCAA Player of the Week on two occasions.

Another outstanding player was Senior Jim Thorton who was just recently drafted by the Chicago Bears. Thorton was a tight end on the Cal State team, and was also an all PCAA First Team along with Todd White, Ed Gillies and A.J. Jenkins.

Gymnastics

Soccer

Al Mistri's Soccer team had a winning 1987. However it was not enough to get them into the NCAA playoffs, as the Titans were rated sixth in the far west region. Only five schools were invited to the playoffs, however they did improve on their 1986 8-11-2 record. Going to a 12-7-1 overall, with an outstanding 9-0-1 mark on their home field. Though this record was not enough to get them national recognition, individual honors were given to Mid-Fielder, Tom Atencio, Mid-Fielder Chuck Smoot, and Striker, Greg Cipolla. Tom Atencio was named all PCAA, he also led CSUF with seven goals and four assists and finishing the season with 18 points. Along with Tom Atencio, was Mid-Fielder Smoot, who was also named all PCAA first Team.

Freshman Striker Cipolla, ended the season with fourteen points, the most ever by a freshman in the PCAA. Cipolla was named the all PCAA second team. And stepping in at the last minute was Nettekoven. Nettekoven played the last seven games for an injured Brian Fisher.

Softball

Volleyball

Cal State Fullerton's Womens Volleyball ended the season in Disappointment. The Titans started out like they were going all the way by setting off a starting 7-1 record. At the beginning, but this was only to lead to dissapointment when they finished with a 9-23 overall, 1-17 in PCAA. However, the team did have some strong finishers such as outside hitter Keri Pier, who was selected most valuable player of the Hafstra Invitational Tournament, and also first Titan to ever be named player of the Hafstra Invitational Tournament, and also first Titan to ever be named player of the week. And team MVP Susan Herman who gathered 431 kills, obliating the CSUF single season record of 301. And has a career kill mark 672. And selected most improved player by her team mates was Ann Witkowski.

Sports In Review

Always finding a way to get the job done is a phrase that exemplifies the successes of the Cal State Fullerton athletics department. The 1987-88 season followed that philosophy as the Titans enjoyed outstanding seasons in many of their sports.

The Titan football team experienced the most challenging season in the university's history and came out of the year with a gratifying 6-6 overall record and a 4-3 Pacific Coast Athletic Association mark. Despite a group of outstanding road opponents including LSU, Florida and Hawaii, Fullerton came one win away from a winning season. Along the way, the Titans benefited from several strong individual efforts. Senior wide receiver Todd White captured three career records (98 pass receptions, 1,504 pass receiving yards and 420 punt return yards) plus three single-season marks (54 pass receptions, 832 pass receiving yards and 374 punt return yards).

White (as a punt returner) joined tight end Chicago Bears draft choice Jim Thornton, offensive guard Ed Gillies and returning defensive end A.J. Jenkins on the All-PCAA first team while second-team selections were running back Eric Franklin, White (as a receiver) plus returners Matt Fitts (OT) and Bill Bryan (ILB).

The ever improving volleyball team under the direction of Fran Cummings made several strides. Among those was the championship at the season opening Hofstra/TDK Tournament in Hempstead, NY. But the PCAA is widely recognized as the nation's premier volleyball conference and Fullerton (9-23/1-17) was forced to suffer through a disappointing year despite a strong season from all-conference outside hitter Susan Herman. But the most important step taken will show payoffs in the years to come with the acquisition of the school's best ever recruiting class. Cummings will feature one of the west's most improved teams and should move up in the conference rankings.

Al Mistri's soccer team, coming off a 1986 PCAA Championship and a trip to the NCAA Tournament, nearly made it two straight trips to the playoffs only to fall just short. Despite a slow start, the squad won six of its last eight including a road victory over UCLA, snapping the Bruins' 26 game home win streak. A season ending tie with PCAA rival UC Santa Barbara kept Fullerton from advancing any further as the Titans finished with a 12-7-1 overall mark and 5-4-1 record in conference (third place). Senior midfielders Tom Atencio and Chuck Smoot were named first-team all-conference while freshman sensation Greg Cipolla made the second team.

The men's and women's cross country team got excellent efforts from Mary Kenny, Jenni Scott and Tom Wright-Hay this past season. Scott placed fifth individually while Kenny finished 11th to lead Fullerton to a fifth-place finish at the PCAA Championships. Wright-Hay came in 24th in the individual competition as the Titan men placed seventh in the same meet.

Coming off a season where they made their second appearance in post-season competition (NIT) and earned a Top 20 national ranking, hopes were very high for George McQuarn's men's basketball team. But tragedy struck the day before classes began when starting forward Derek Jones was wounded in the back and left arm in a random drive-by shooting near his home in Long Beach and was lost for the season. Despite the loss of Jones, Fullerton was picked to finish third in the PCAA. But the first part of the season found the Titans getting bit by the dreaded injury bug as most of the starting lineup spent time on the bench or the sick bed.

But the senior-dominated Titans received great efforts from Henry Turner, Richard Morton and Eugene Jackson and won five of their final six in the regular season and then defeated Fresno State in the PCAA Tournament opener. Despite another heroic effort from the seniors, Fullerton's season came to an end the next night with a 61-56 loss to UNLV in a quarterfinal game. The Titans finished the year at 12-17 with a 7-11 PCAA mark.

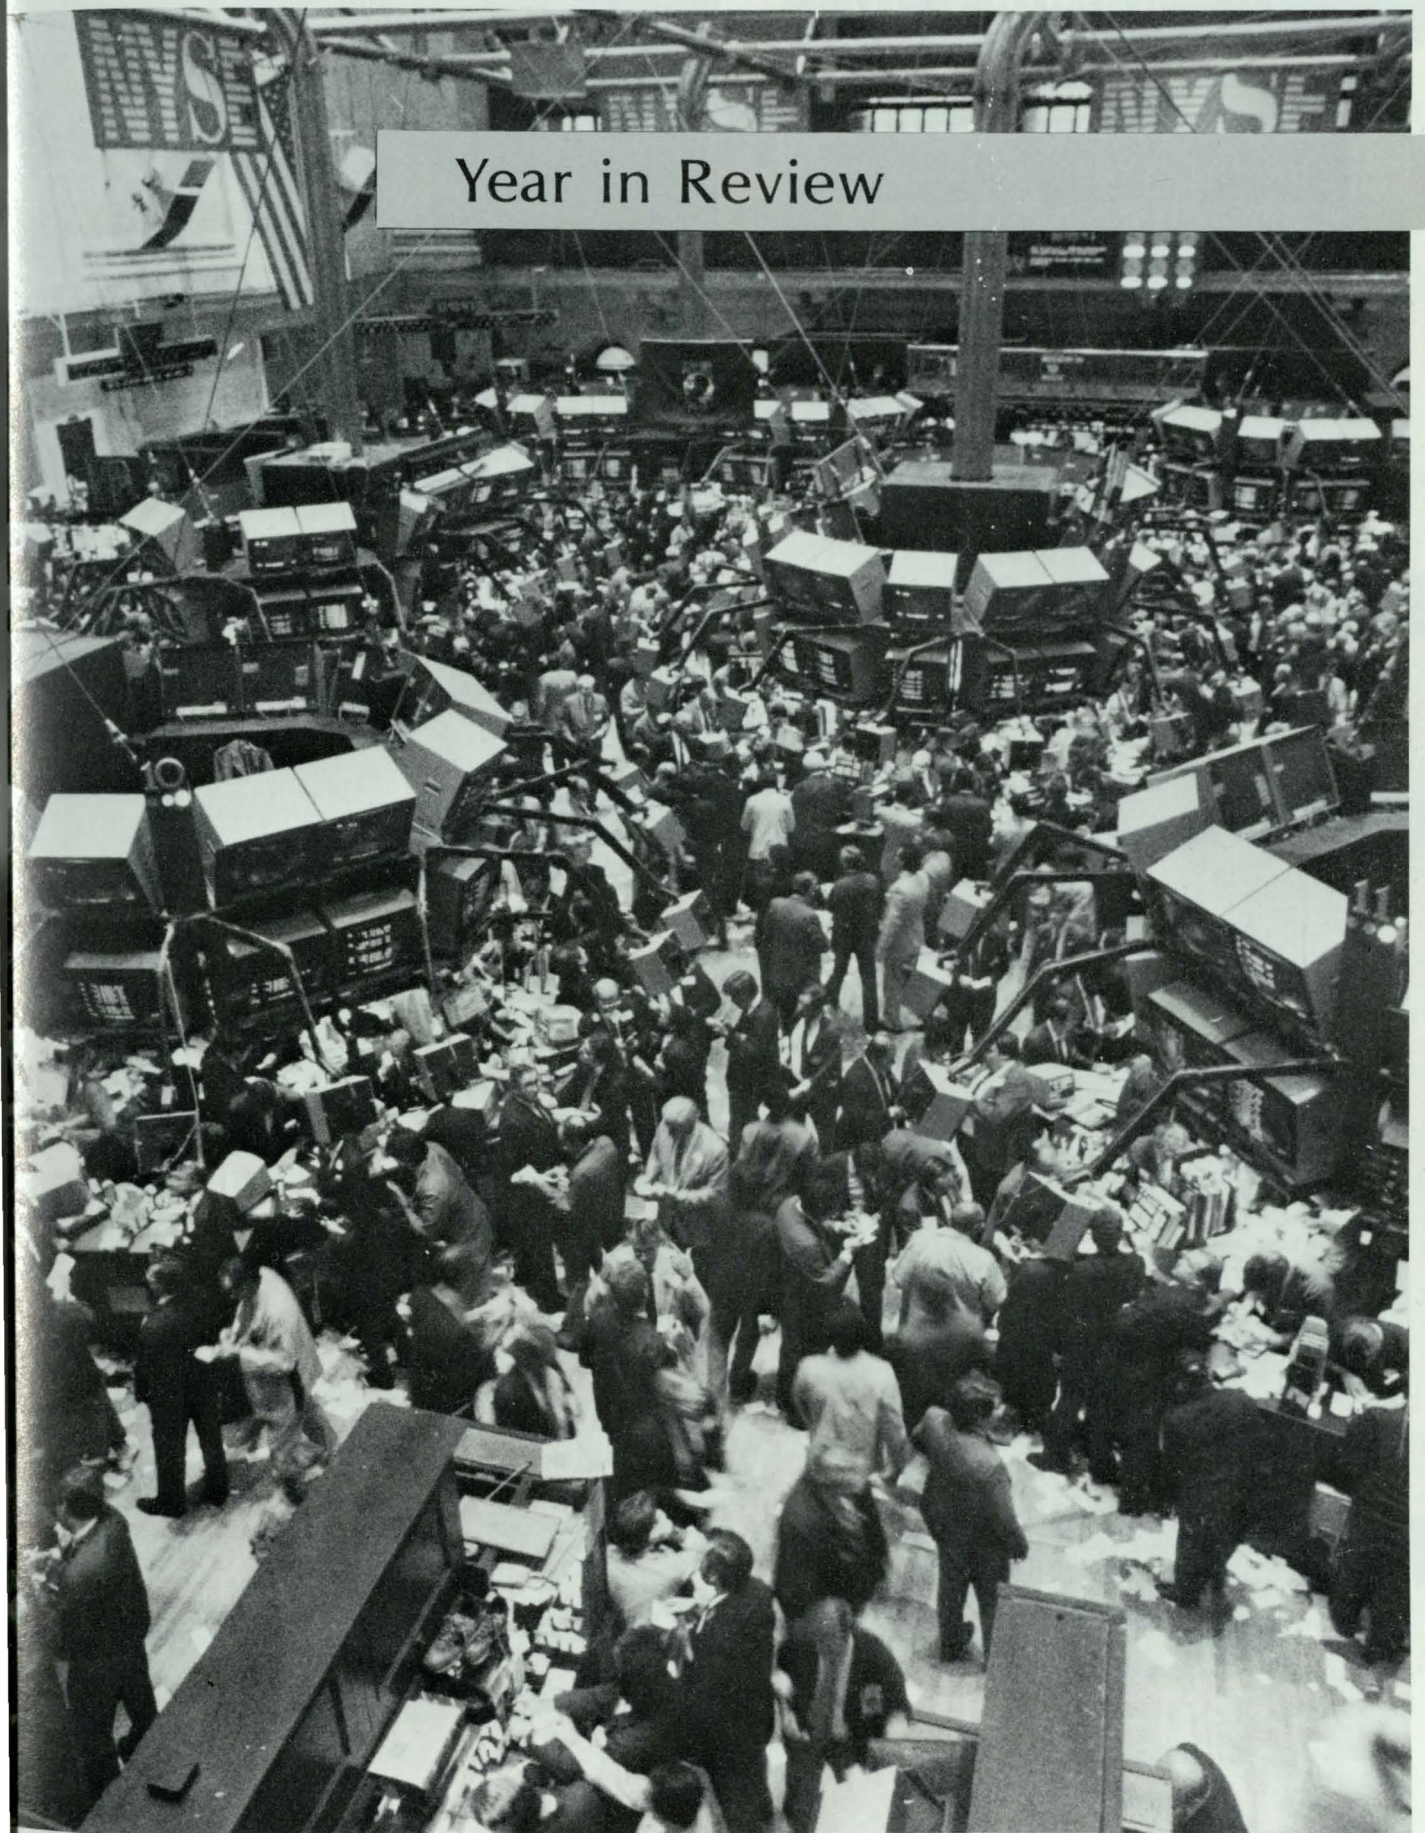

The women's basketball team, on the other hand, enjoyed its finest season in the Maryalyce Jeremiah era. The third-year head coach, who came to Fullerton from Indiana University, saw her team picked to finish sixth in the conference. Jeremiah in turn led the gutsy Titans to a third-place finish and a semi-final appearance in the PCAA Tournament. All-PCAA forward Amy Torczon became the first Fullerton basketball player to be named to the national GTE-Academic All-America team as the Titans finished with an 18-11 record. Jeremiah was named the PCAA Coach of the Year while Eugenia Miller was named the conference Freshman of the Year.

The Fullerton men's and women's gymnastics teams posted season featuring several

Work on the dorms continued as the applications for the new housing trickled in.

Many students encountered parking problems as construction of the Marriott Hotel and the confusion of the first two weeks of classes began.

Due to a shortage of office space, 41 temporary offices were set in place between the library and the Titan Bookstore.

Larry Cochell, former Cal State Los Angeles baseball coach, was named the new CSUF baseball coach to replace former coach Augie Garrido.

Entertainment

Michael Jackson released "Bad", his first album in five years.

Comedian Bill Cosby scores with the number one television show, a record selling book, and a fortune touted as the highest in the entertainment industry.

Winter '88

International

Although it produced no new arms-control breakthroughs, the summit meeting in Washington D.C., between Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan seemed to bring the 40-year struggle between the U.S. and the Soviet Union to a new and more personable phase.

A coup attempt against Corey Aquino is thwarted in the Philippine Islands.

National

The Stock Market began to recover from October's "Black Monday" as the Dow Jones started to rise once again.

State

Many homeless people spend cold nights sleeping on the sands at Venice Beach, while activists tried to publicize the homeless problem in Los Angeles and all over the United States.

Sports

American athletes brought home six gold medals from the Winter Olympics in Calgary, Canada.

The Washington Redskins beat the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XXII in San Diego. The Redskins scored a record 35 points in the second quarter. The final score was 42-10.

School

Construction of the new Nutwood Avenue entrances and exits began, while workers also continued building the Gerontology Center.

International

The Duke and Duchess of York made their first visit to Southern California.

National

Vice President George Bush and Senator Robert Dole battled for the Republican nomination for presidency. Meanwhile, there were no clear-cut standouts of the Democrat candidates, even after Senator Gary Hart dropped out of the race for the second time.

NASA officials continued to work hard in order to keep the July lift off date for the next shuttle flight since the 1986 shuttle disaster.

State

Gang problems in Los Angeles became headline news after two women were innocently gunned down within ten days of each other.

School

Condoms dispensers were placed in the restrooms at the University Center.

Construction added to the confusion of the opening of the spring session. The new Nutwood Avenue entrances and the loss of many parking spaces due to that construction caused some students to turn to alternate modes of transportation. A shuttle park and ride program was instituted. The students who used this service parked at Racquetball World Health Club and were dropped off at several points on campus by a shuttle van.

The new resident dorms opened just in time for the spring session.

Cal State Fullerton's Newest Alumni The Graduates

Theresa A. Harvey
President Conference of CSUF
Alumni

Congratulations! You have reached another milestone in your journey through life. You may not remember the days of elephant races on the CSUF campus (circa 1960), but I'm sure you have many other fond and lasting memories of your college days.

On behalf of the Conference of CSUF Alumni, I welcome you to your alumni organization. By becoming an active member of the Conference you will have the opportunity to continually enrich your life.

In addition to career development services, new alumni may join members for special social and educational activities designed by and for graduates. We will keep you informed of upcoming activities through Titan News, our quarterly newsletter. In addition, you may receive information of events and activities sponsored by your department or school.

We are here to serve you, so let us hear from you! The network of CSUF alumni reaches much further than the Fullerton Campus. There are now more than 70,000 of your fellow graduates residing throughout the United States and beyond. From CEO's of major international corporations to world-renown scientists and internationally recognized artists, there are successful individuals who share with you the bond of an education at CSUF.

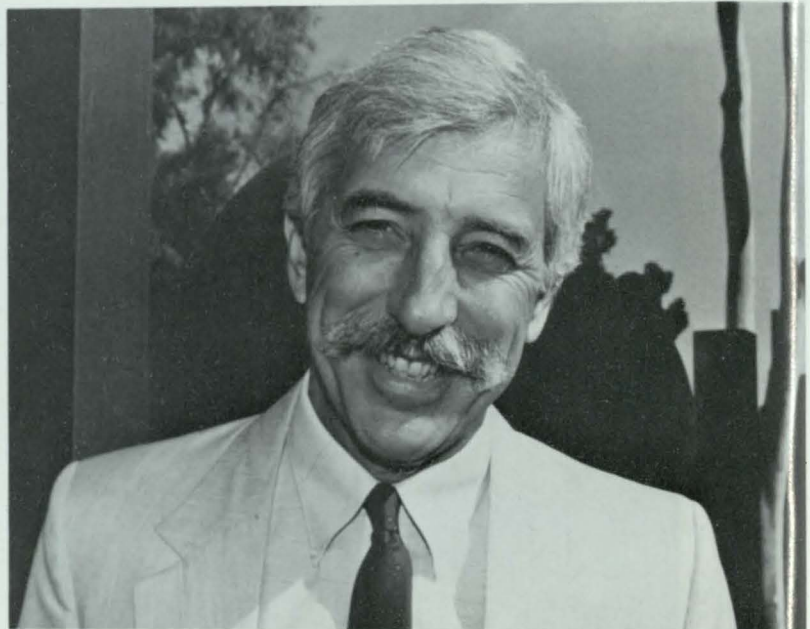

Best wishes for success in your future endeavors. Remember you may be graduating, but you will not be forgotten by the University who helped you achieve your dreams.

The School of the Arts

Graduation is a time of joy for you and your family. On behalf of your extended family, the faculty and staff of the School of the Arts, I offer to you our very best wishes for continued success in your arts endeavors in the future.

Orange County is alive with creative activity in Music, Art, Theatre and Dance. I know that as a graduate of the School you will become an active member of the art community and we look forward to seeing your professional success.

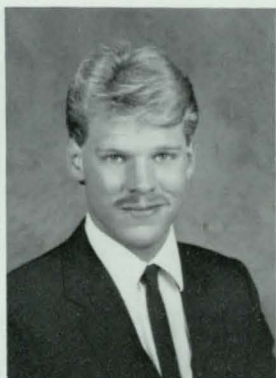

Through the school's alumni council we hope to continue to serve your needs. Please keep in touch; we now want you to join our alumni family.

America's "favorite" couple.

Television evangelists Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker said farewell to the PTL ministry in March. Jim Bakker resigned after confessing to a sexual encounter with a young woman. Tammy Bakker bowed out of the broadcasts to undergo treatment for drug dependency.

The School of Business Administration and Economics

Congratulations on completing an important step in your professional education. You should now be academically prepared for a lifetime of learning and the faculty and staff of the School of Business Administration and Economics applaud your achievements.

I hope you will always consider your school as an important resource throughout your life and remember that the faculty and staff will be available to help you. I hope, too, that you will help the school by becoming involved in the School Council of Alumni. Our alumni council is an enthusiastic and supportive group which has a strong commitment to students and alumni alike. Continued involvement in the educational environment will enrich your life.

I celebrate your academic achievements and wish you much success in your personal and career goals.

We Deliver

A barge filled with 3,128 tons of garbage became a national joke and a symbol of the nation's worsening problem with solid waste management. The barge, looking for a place to dump its cargo, was banned by six states and three foreign countries before an incinerator reduced it to ash.

The School of Engineering and Computer Science

The faculty and staff of the School of Engineering and Computer Science would like to congratulate the class of 1988 for its high level of achievements. Your graduation marks an end of a very important step in your education and it also marks the beginning for you as a CSUF alumnus. As an alumnus you can help the school and yourself by becoming involved in the school's Council of Alumni. We hope that you, as an alumnus, will continue your involvement with the school and the University.

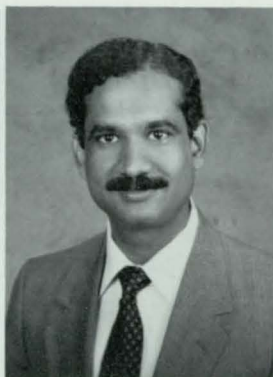

As the first Dean of the School of Engineering and Computer Science, I would specially like to congratulate all the engineering and computer science graduates. I hope that you will bring with you in your next step in education, whether it be in the classroom or outside it, the many ideas that you have learned here at CSUF and the many experiences you have had here.

The School of Human Development and Community Service

The faculty, staff and I extend our warmest congratulations to you on the occasion of your graduation from the university. Human development and community service are the central components of the professions you have chosen as counselors, educators, human service professionals and health and physical education specialists. As you begin the phase of your career, we urge you to be reflective about your own development and that of your clients, patients or students. Your location in the culturally diverse and ethnically-rich Los Angeles basin is an environment ripe with challenges and opportunities for meaningful community service. As alumni you are now an important segment of the school's community. We look toward a productive and collaborative relationship with you.

A Golden Day

The Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco celebrated its 50th birthday. About 250,000 people jammed onto the bridge for an anniversary walk across the span. Another 500,000 packed the bridge approaches but were denied access because the engineers feared the span could not support the weight.

The School of Humanities and Social Sciences

As you reminisce about your years at Cal State Fullerton, I hope you will continue to discover new relationships between what you learned while you were here and the challenges that confront you now. No college curriculum could possibly include all you need to know to make your way in the modern world. Nonetheless, the promises of the Liberal Arts disciplines are that they help people learn how to learn, see present situations against the backdrop of larger realities and the sweep of history and solve novel problems effectively. It remains our sincere hope that these promises have been fulfilled in your life and that you have experienced the satisfaction that comes from applying these general skills that constitute the foundation of the disciplines in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences.

The School of Natural Science and Mathematics

Congratulations on successfully completing this stage of what I hope will be your continued education and personal and professional growth. You can be proud of what you have achieved and we are proud to have you as an alumnus of our school.

Graduation marks the step forward from a period in your life when you were learning new skills and abilities, to a period when our society will ask you to use your skills with sensitivity and sophistication to shape the ways in which technology affects all of us in our global village. We are confident that your abilities and the education that you have received will allow you to meet this challenge with imagination and wisdom.

All of us who are affiliated with the school and the university wish you every success in life. As you leave us, we hope you will remember your experiences at Fullerton as positive ones and find that they give you support in your continued growth as you embark on the next step toward the future.

Some questions to think about:

- Does your car have a CSUF Alumni License Plate Frame?
- Do you have a class ring?
- Do you have a CSUF tie, sweatshirt, cap or mug?
- Do you remember the last time you bought something for yourself at Titan Bookstore?

If you answered NO to more than one of the above questions then it is time to take a trip to Titan Bookstore for yourself - you have worked hard.

Show that you are part of the CSUF Alumni!

Take advantage of the CSUF items that we can offer you.

Phone orders happily accepted.
